

Public Consultation

Your Input Is Wanted on Reforming Our Public Hospitals

We are holding public consultations about our public hospitals. We want to hear your ideas about how our public hospitals can be revitalized and reformed in the public interest. For example, in areas where there are new hospitals planned, people are concerned about multiple local hospitals closing down, the P3 privatization of their hospitals, or the location of new hospitals being too far away. We want to hear, first hand, how hospital cuts have reduced access to needed services, changed how work is done, and led to privatization. We want to know what you think about hospital boards that are no longer elected by the community or executive salaries that have ballooned. We also want to hear the positive experiences of excellent life-saving and life-enhancing care. Leading into next spring's provincial election, we want to forge an agenda to fund our hospitals properly, and to ensure that funding goes to care. We want to hold all of the political parties' plans up against our proposals and see where they can be improved. Join us to help make our communities' hospitals the best they can be.
