

Taking the "care" out of homecare

In December 2007 the Victorian Order of Nurses (VON) and St. Joseph's Home Care were deemed "not eligible" in a "competitive bidding" process to submit requests for proposals to provide home care services in Hamilton even though these two organizations are the largest not-for-profit agencies in the region and provide about 80 percent of home nursing care in the region.

As a result, 100 years of faithful non-profit community homecare service is under threat and patients face serious service disruptions.

Ask Premier McGuinty why he is wiping out over 100 years of non-profit home care

Homecare privatization

BROKEN PROMISES

McGuinty promised to support public health care, but now supports large, private for-profit companies running homecare health services. Home nursing and support are a vital part of the health-care system. They should be treated as a professional public service rather than a commodity bought and sold for profit!

DISRUPTED SERVICE

Elderly patients are the ones who suffer when service is disrupted due to the staff shortages that have historically accompanied competitive bidding.
